“ I never know exactly what to say in this situation but my heart sincerely goes out to all of you. Brandon was a great guy and a great friend. We had a lot of good laughs around the office here and I will miss him a lot.

He always took pride in what he did; the two pictures I attached are a great example. I asked for a simple piece of metal to hang on the wall as a magnet board and instead of just nailing a piece up there he took the time to put design into it and even hemmed the edges so in his own words I wouldn't hurt myself lol. He liked to mess with me because like him if I noticed something wasn't even, straight, or square with things around it it would drive me nuts until I got it right. It took us about 5-minutes to get this thing hung right so that it wouldn't look crooked to either one of us.

I never would have though that a simple piece of metal like this would mean much but it has turned into a great memory and will always be a reminder so I though it was worth sharing.
