“ I met the Marshalls after meeting my soon to be wife Cindy Free. The Marshalls and Frees had been neighborhood friends for a long time. I will remember Carolyn as being one of the sweetest people you would have the pleasure to meet. She always wore a smile and had something nice to say. For many years we would go to the Christmas Eve party that Carolyn would have at her home. She would always make sure to have presents for our two children. Carolyn went out of her way to make you feel welcome. I enjoyed those Christmas parties, and fun times. I ordered flowers from her floral shop on many occasions. She made a point to put together a "special" arrangement, for whoever I might be sending flowers to. I know that many people will miss Carolyn's smile, and giving personality. Dave Johnson

“ In 1947, Carolyn and I met and immediately became best friends as pre-schoolers. Being only children at the time, we spent every afternoon and most weekends together. Carolyn often joined my family for summer vacations at Colonial Beach and Myrtle Beach. We shared classes and friends all through school and, after graduating in 1960, both went to work for the USDA until she joined her mother at The Virginia Florist in Belleview. As our careers and families followed different paths, after marriage and children and grandchildren, we stayed in touch and cherished our special lifelong friendship. While my heart is full of sadness at losing my old friend, it is also full of loving memories of happy times we shared, special fun we experienced, and the strength/support we gave to and received from each other over many years. Such friendships are rare and treasured gifts from God that surely will be renewed in heaven. If so, dear Carolyn, we will meet again.
