Helen Hasse Phillips

April 13, 1922 - August 18, 2016

Helen Hasse Phillips has passed into the hands of her savior Jesus Christ. Raised in Brooklyn, New York, as a youngster, she became a champion handball player. She lived a long wonderful life, traveled extensively, and lived abroad. She was an accomplished tap-dancer and had a splendid singing voice. She entertained others with her talents over decades of her life. She had a leadership role in the founding of the Springboard Recreation Club. She worked professionally in support of the Bradley Fighting Vehicle and the Central Intelligence Agency. She helped rescue orphaned children in South Korea, flying dozens to the United States. She was defined by her stylish beauty and her complete and total confidence, which was legendary. She was a take charge person her entire life. She had an unmistakable good nature and a wonderful sense of humor. She was intelligent and loved people. She could be uncompromising, mainly because she was never one once to quit. She was a strong women, and a straightforward no-nonsense individual, yet her life touched a deep chord in the hearts of many. Her hospitality has earned her a special place in history. She was an animal lover. She was loved by many. Her greatest love was for her late husband, Lamar Phillips, her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was also madly in love with her nieces and nephews. Family was everything to her. She is survived by her children, Larry Richardson, Sherri DePalma and husband Joseph DePalma, Robert Herron, Mike Herron and wife Elyse Herron, along with Grand Children Kimberly Pierson, Pamela Jordan, Sheena Chickering, Tristy Richardson, Meg Roberts and Curtis Herron; Great Grand Children Jonathan Jordan, Thomas Jordan, Andrew Jordan, Sherry Pierson, Emma Roberts, Ava Roberts and Abigail Herron.
