

Simone Natasha Bernard

April 19, 1975 - March 19, 2025

Simone, born April 19, 1975, was a beautiful woman both inward and outward. She had a tender loving heart that was misunderstood by many; spending much of her time trying to help and make others feel the comfort of being wanted or deserving of attention. Not only did she possess a special kindness, but Simone was also a talented artist/crafter with the ability to teach herself anything (artistically and academically).

Her departure from this world, a month before her 50th birthday, leaves a sting for those she's left behind: Parents, Daughter, Sister, Brothers, Niece, Nephews, Uncles, Aunts, Cousins, and Friends. We will all miss her patience, kind, fearless, and vibrant spirit. She will be celebrated in a private ceremony by close family and friends. However, all are welcome to join her Inurnment at Quantico National Cemetery on April 21, 2025.

“ Greetings,
My condolences to the Bernard family and friends. Simone was the energy of productivity. Yes, she was not a timid person at all, very well spoken , and handy. I really believe that her personality was the product of a great family. Simone’s energy should be celebrated. Bless Mr. & Mrs. Bernard, her siblings, and her daughter with continued success. May your blessings be in an abundance. Amen

“ When I found out about Simone's diagnosis, I checked in with her every few weeks, almost on a monthly basis, just to make sure she was in good spirits and check on her progress. She was always so positive and hopeful. She thanked God on the good and the not so good days. She was determined to be independent and take care of herself, despite her circumstances. She fought a good fight. She will be missed. Rest well, Simone.

“ I fondly look back at the times my sister and I baked in our Easy Bake oven in the woods as kids and had each others backs growing up. We were inseparable for many years being one year apart. I already miss the comfort of knowing she's present. She helped guide me back to a Christian life and helped me step out of my introvert shell (watching her be so outgoing).
