

The Haynos Family

January 29, 2025

With great sadness, Cory (16), Stephanie (56), and Roger Haynos (56), passed from this earthly life to heaven on January 29, 2025. Their beloved sister and daughter, Emily Haynos, survives to cherish their memory.

Stephanie is the daughter of the late Philip and Joan Branton. Accomplished in her studies, she obtained her Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration and Accounting, her Master of Education in Supervision and Leadership, and her Doctorate of Philosophy, in Progress, Education Policy. Stephanie was a caring and loving mother of all her children. She was a kind person to everyone she met. She was always willing to help people out with whatever she could.

Roger, the son of Edward and the late Ruthie Haynos, was a retired network engineer who spent as much time with his family as possible. Roger was a loving and protective father. There wasn't anything he wouldn't do for his family. He was an outspoken friend and willing to talk to anyone he met about anything.

Cory was an energetic son, strong skater, and thoughtful younger brother. He was a friend in many communities and aimed high with his goals. After the conclusion of the 2024-25 U.S. Figure Skating National Qualifying Series, Cory was ranked #1 in the country in intermediate men.

The entire family were devoted Christians, and put God above all.

“ I live in Australia, and I am leaving this message to Emily in October 2025. Emily, we have never met, but I have been thinking about you and praying for you all year. I cannot express how deeply sorry I am for your loss. I can't imagine how it feels, but I lost my grandmother many years ago, and I remember the heartache. I am sending you so much love and strength, praying for you every day, and sending you my love from across the world. May God guide you through this painful time in your life. It does get easier, it really does, but it takes time. Time is your best friend now, and may you feel the energy of your parents and your brother, even though they're not here in the physical, they will always be around you. Just find some quiet time and listen for them, pay attention to your dreams. God bless you. xoxo.

“ I didn't know him personally but I watched him skate all the time, and he didn't know it, but he helped me progress so much. I often overheard his conversations and he seemed like such a kind and goofy person. Despite not knowing him personally, its a tragedy to lose Cory and both his parents.

“ It is with great sadness and my greatest condolences to Emily and the extended Haynos family. My daughter and Emily met in Kindergarten and I have known the Haynos family since then. Stephanie and Roger are very caring, loving and supportive parents. I still remember we watched the kids playing in the pool together, trick or treat together, a lot of smiles and laughters. Cory, Stephanie and Roger, R.I.P. Dear Emily, there will be ups and downs in the life. I believe your parents are watching over you in Heaven. You will find strength in their love. If there is anything we can help with, please do let us know.

“ I first met the Haynos family in the summer of 2014. They had come down to Florida to visit Siesta Key and Emily was recommended to take a few lessons from me at Ellenton Ice during their vacation. I could tell right away how supportive and loving Stephanie and Roger were with their daughter. I remember meeting Cory, but he wasn't on the ice yet. It was nice to meet such lovely people from the Skating Club of Northern Virginia, which SCNV was the club I was a part of at the Fairfax Ice Arena. My sincerest sympathy and condolences go to Emily and the extended Haynos family. I send prayers of healing, comfort and peace.

“ Emily, you have been in my heart and prayers. I met you and your mom at the Coolest Playgroup when you were a toddler. Miranda and you would play alongside each other. Over the years, Stephanie & I kept in touch over Facebook. In a post about Miranda's baptism on 1/7/15, she commented, "Yeah! So happy for you all. I never got a picture of when Emily was baptized, but it was the weekend after Easter, 2013. She was saved 2 years ago this month." I am praying that you find strength in your Rock, your Abba Father, your Anchor, your Comforter, your Friend that sticks closer than a brother. When everything fades, remember Jesus is your true north. Trust him with your WHOLE heart.

I know your life has turned in a blink, and it feels so unfair. I trust you have friends and family you can turn to.. I know that you will have good days and not-so-good days. If you ever need anything - big or small, Miranda and I are here for you. Look for my card with my details - save it. If you ever need to reach out, we are available. You're not alone. We love you!

“ It is with great sadness and my greatest condolences to the entire Haynos family and all that lost their lives in this tragedy. It feels like a dream and is hard to swallow. I remember teaching Cory in 7th grade Health and PE at Frost. He had a smile to light up the room, lots of energy we tried to release in a positive way and i remember his parents writing me about his trips to skate competitively and how proud they were to share his accomplishments with video clips they would share. I know Cory was always a bit shy in sharing his figure skating ability with his classmates and I always told him he should be proud of his efforts. I only had the chance to work with Cory for a short time in life but it is always the hardest points in students lives when they reach the teen years and go through so many changes. I will say Cory was well liked and known and his skating friend Eddie that was a year older also enjoyed being in 8th grade while Cory was in 7th grade. They had a way of balancing each other out. Out of words is the best way to explain how I feel. As a teacher, we try to lead out students and families in a positive way and when events occur out of our control, it kind of puts a halt on life or our feelings. My heart goes out to everyone and I just pray they are at peace together and continue to watch down over Emily and the rest of the family. I have been lighting candles and hope they can hear the prayers being sent. Heaven has gained many angels way too soon.

“ My deepest condolences to the Haynos family. I began work as a contractor in FCPS in 1998, I was a lone contractor in a sea of FCPS employees. Roger always stopped by to talk and hang out He made me feel welcome. I will remember all of those conversations, laughing and joking during our "Monday Meetings" back in the day, and also working with him as our Network Engineer. May God grant Roger, Stephanie, and Cory peace and love. Prayers to their daughter Emily now and for years to come. We will miss you so much Roger, sending prayers to the Haynos family.

“ Our sincere condolences to Emily and all surviving family of Roger Haynos. My family are all descendants of Tom Haynos, son of Joseph Haynos an immigrant from Poland. We are relatively certain we are not too distant relatives, especially as Roger's looks are very familial. Many of us Kansas Haynos's live a short distance from Wichita KS. We are so saddened by this tragic loss and even more so to have been so close yet so far. Rest in peace Roger, Stephanie, and Cory. We pray that Emily and all immediate family will also find peace in God's loving arms. Sending love and prayers from your Haynos family in Kansas. God bless you. Theresa Haynos Hamilton

“ Roger and I met in 2017 on a trip to Canada as partners in horses. We remained very close as he became my mentor in the Off And Pacing game we play as part of a larger fun community. I will miss his calls about the game our real life horses and mostly our kids! He was so happy to brag about them and his love for them was so real!! He also was there to support me in dealing with my own disabled child keeping me grounded in the positive. I will never forget our friendship and want Emily to know she will never truly be alone!
