“ You have my sincerest condolences and my prayers. Death is never easy to deal with, most especially when our loved one is so very young!

May you find comfort to deal with your loss in God's word where we find his future promises of a resurrection, no more death, pain, or suffering (Acts 24:15; Revelation 21:3,4)

“ Such a shock, and so much complicated grief. My heart goes out to all the family I know, and those near and dear that I don't know, but who are grieving as well. As a friend of the family since the late 60's, I remember the previous generation at this age. So poignant, and so painful; such unexpected and "prematute" losses change the course of a family's history in unpredictable ways. His memory, at least, will make the journey with you. Remember the best moments and let those joys comfort you as you heal.

*Been there. It's true.
Love to you all, Patti*
